

PROFESSIONAL LATITUDE AND TEACHER CREATIVITY

^p
Policy 311

Page 1

Instructional personnel are responsible for providing student instruction that is consistent with applicable academic and instructional standards, the approved curriculum, any mandatory instructional elements or assessments that are included in the relevant curriculum plan, and such other directives or expectations established by the employee's supervising administrator(s). In most cases, these general boundaries are expected to leave instructional staff with professional latitude to creatively define particular instructional activities, approaches to instruction, and assignments that will further the objective of improving student engagement and student learning, to further the District's locally-established learning goals and objectives for students.
